

Self-Service Coin Solutions

More profit.

More options.

More reasons to add a Cummins Allison coin counter to your store.

In today's highly competitive marketplace, grocers must offer value-added services that enhance their customers' in-store experience. Self-service coin redemption is one cost-effective way to achieve this goal.

Compared to the competition, Cummins Allison coin counters give you more profit per square foot. Here's how:

- Better ROI - program and product options that increase your profitability.
- Increase revenue - more up-time and faster counting creates loyal customers.
- Save on fees - recycle coins right in your store and reduce armored carrier fees for picking up and purchasing coin.

Add or replace coin machines the easy way

Until now, one-size-fits-all coin counting programs delivered a take it or leave it solution. This limited option failed to consider your unique business requirements.

We change the way coin counting is offered by giving grocers the widest range of choices in machine configuration, procurement options and different ways to manage coin. You can invest nothing at all, expense the cost or capitalize and depreciate the equipment.

- Three procurement options – purchase, lease or placement.
- Four coin processing options - choose Cummins Allison's coin management program

(CMP) for bin machines or with bag machines in-store recycling, outsource with armored carrier or take direct to bank.

- Multiple machine models - meet your needs for a smaller footprint, low or high volume, more or less employee interaction with the coin and the most reliable performance in the industry.
